*The Tax Simplification Act of 2011 significantly reduced the requirements for transmitting electronic invoices, effective July 1, 2011. A specific technical transmission method is no longer required. This means that input tax deduction is now permissible for invoices transmitted via email (potentially with PDF/text file attachments), computer fax, fax server, or web download. However, it is essential that the authenticity of the invoice's origin, the integrity of its content, and its readability are ensured. This requires that the recipient of the invoice verifies whether the invoice is substantively correct, i.e., whether the invoiced service was actually provided in the described quality and quantity, and whether the details of the invoice issuer are accurate. This verification can be carried out, for example, by manually comparing the invoice with existing documents (such as orders, contracts, delivery notes, or payment receipts). Since such checks are typically performed as part of routine procedures, no additional effort is incurred.

Hereby we confirm the accuracy of the aforementioned data. We will inform you immediately of any changes. We are aware of the current terms and conditions (AGB/AVB) and hereby acknowledge acceptance.
